

Efstratios Stylianidis is the elected Vice Rector for Research and Lifelong Learning at the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, Greece, for the period 2019-2023. He is an Associate Professor at the School of Spatial Planning and Development, Faculty of Engineering, Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, where he leads the Laboratory of Geoinformatics (LabGEO). He is the President of the ISPRS/ICOMOS International Scientific Committee, CIPA-Heritage Documentation.

His research focuses on the intersection of Geospatial Engineering and ICT for the benefit of natural and built environment. He is the author of 2 theses, 2 books, 80 scientific publications in peer reviewed journals and conferences proceedings, 8 invited chapters in books as well as the editor of 2 books. He holds 1 patent. He has participated in more than 50 national and mainly international research projects (H2020, FP7, Erasmus+, etc.), 10 of which as the scientific and project coordinator.

He has participated in 52 national and international conferences, while in 26 he has a member of the organizing and/or scientific committee. He is a reviewer in 16 scientific journals, while he participates in the editorial board of 3 scientific journals. In 2017, he received the European Satellite Navigation Competition 2017 award (Madrid Challenge) for the H2020 EU co-funded LARA project. He was a visiting Professor at Columbia University (2018), while as an invited speaker he offered lectures at Columbia University, Princeton University, and University of California Los Angeles (UCLA), Tsinghua University, just to name a few.